Nicky Winmar, a Noongar man and a player for the St Kilda Football team, stood in front of spectators at Victoria Park in Melbourne who had been yelling out racial abuse, lifted his guernsey and pointed at his skin. He shouted the words "I'm black and I'm proud to be black". This moment, captured in the photo on 17 April 1993, was an iconic moment and prompted action to combat racism in Australia.

Choose how you might like to respond to this image. You might like to write a letter to Nicky, create an awareness campaign about racism, imagine you are a spectator at the game and write a memory piece or pretend you are a news reporter who witnessed this on the day.
